

ORIENTATION WEEK 1987

Pretty ladies vying for the Miss Sunway title

The College orientation committee is responsible for the year-round planning of the programs and comprises representatives of Sunway's students, faculty and administrative staff. The orientation coordinator works with the orientation committee in developing and carrying out the orientation program.

The objective of the Orientation Week is to provide an opportunity for the new students to participate in guided tours of the College and formal and informal meetings with faculty, other staff and their fellow students. The purpose of such meetings is not only to create a comfortable atmosphere, but also to provide information regarding all College matters so that each student has a clearer understanding of the problems, expectations and challenges facing undergraduates in a university environment.

The grandest of all the Orientation events was the 'Orientation Nite' held at the Rain-tree Club, Ampang. Some of the Raintree highlights are...
